For State Engineer and Surveyor George Cinton Ward of Onelda, or Russell R. Staart of Onondaga.

For Judge of the Court of Appeals—Ex-Judge Alton R. Parker of Kingston, or ex-Judge John D. Teller of Anburn.

Many leading Democrais believe that King for Secretary of State. Scheu for Comptroller, Judson for State Treasurer, Griffin for Attorney-General, Ward for State Engineer, and Teller for Judge of the Court of Appeals, will pretty nearly hit the unil on the head, unless the Tammany situation brings out new and unexpected complications to-morrow.

Hut great work was done to-day by Anthony N. Brady of Albany and his friends to bring about the nomination of Norton Chase for Comptroller. Ex-Senator Chase is a fellow townsman of Mr. Brady and his friends and wanted to know if they were really serious in their demand for Chase, and they replied with all the vigor imaginable that they were for Chase first and last. They produced evidence that Chase had already behind him Albany county, which is in Justice Parker's Judicial district, and that white a vote for Chase would endanger the prospects of Justice Parker for the nomination for Judge of the Court of Appeals, they would stand by Chase.

It was pointed out that Justice Parker had never said he was a candidate for the Appeals bench, that he has until Dec. 31, 1800 to serve, and that a vacancy would give the appointment of a Supreme Court Justice. On the other hand, it was recalled that last year Justice Charles F. Brown accepted the momination for the Appeals bench, that he has until Dec. 31, 1800 to serve, and that a vacancy would give the appointment of a Supreme Court Justice. Chase's supporters said also that besides the Albany delegation, they had the support of Onelda. Renseelser, part of Kings, part of New York, part of Jefferson, part of Queens, Montgomers, and Schou's Friends declared that he already had at his back over a hundred delegates and that he would win.

It was made very clear to-night that Senator Hullends of Judson set up a wall over this, and est terms, and they believe that Scientor in should not insist upon the nomination of Justice Parker.

But whatever the result, the day's events have demonstrated that this is a fine old Democratic Convention, where every mother's son of a Democrat, no matter how humble, has a say in the councils of the party.

Just after midnight the Committee on Resolutions having in charge the excise plank, appointed this sub-committee to report to the full committee at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning: Ex-Gov. Flower, Congressman William Sulzer, Wauhope Lynn, Edward M. Shepard, and Daniel N. Lockwood.

It was still insisted that the Ridder plank, modified in a few sentences, will be the plank of the Convention, and to end the agony the Committee on Credentials, just about the same time, gave the Fairchilders a representation of one-lifth in the Convention. This gave them 21 out of the 105 delegates from New York county, leaving 84 for Tammany. This was considered sop to Tammany's anger.

THE NEW STATE COMMITTEE.

Men Who Will Serve in the New Organian

Hinkley: Twenty-fifth, Charles M. Preston; Twenty-sixth, Thomas Keery; Twenty-eighth, Alvin J. Quackenbush; Keery; Twenty-eighth, Alvin J.; Quackenbush; Twenty-ninth, John Bowe; Thirtieth, Francis J. ODD FIEWS OF THE POLITICIANS. Up-country Democrats and Tammany Bumptious Mr. Ridder-Free Cuba

SYRACUSE, Sept. 24.-Last night was pretty nearly as unpleasant for Tammany Hall braves as was the first night at Chicago in 1892. The trouble in Chicago was the same as it is here. Tammany was the higgest single delegation attending the Convention, and was inclined to feel its muscle. Of course, it is the biggest single delegation here, and a lot of the country statesmen seem to resent this. The fact that Tammany Hall polls more than a quarter of the entire Democratic vote of the State doesn't seem to cut any figure with the up-country states men, who apparently have an impression that these votes are not needed at all to elect the State ticket that is to be nominated: that is to say, some of them have their impressions. Others say Oh, well, Tammany will vote with us anyway, so what's the use of treating it decently Sock it to 'em. They are only a lot of New York city people, and they can stand it."

This feeling is all very well provided it is kept under cover, but when it is as openly displayed as it was in Chicago and as it is here, it stirs up the Tammany men and gets them in a fighting humor. Of course the feeling against Tammany is tostered by the State Democracy, and the members of that organization have lost no opportunity to blackguard Tammany Hall. The Tammany delegates evinced a surprising degree of reciprocity in the feeling this morning at a meeting they held in the Yates before the Convention was called. They selected their best speakers to go before the Committee on Contested Seats to night and give everybody Hall Columbia. The speakers are Thomas F. Grady, William B. Ellison, Senator Thomas C. O'Sullivan, Senator Guy, Senator Cantor, and Maurice F. Holahan. It was proposed by some of the Tammany delegates this morning to withdraw opposition to the admission of one-third of the State Democracy delegations provided the delegation was divided by weight and not by numbers. It was figured that the Hon. Thomas Costigan and the Hon. W. Fatty Grote carried one-third the weight of the entire delegation, and by admitting them no harm would be done, and it wouldn't even be necessary to exact any pledges of support for the local ticket. In case these two were a little short of the necessary one-third, it was auggested that Coroner Hoeber might be chucked in the scales to make up. as it was in Chicago and as it is here, it stirs up

The presence of the Hop, Wheeler H. Peckham and the Hon. Everett P. Wheeler on the delegation of the State Democracy, demanding to the greater number of the regular Democrats here-even to those Democrats who favor the admission of a third of the State Democrac delegations. These Democrats say that they believe the State Democracy as an organization supported the State ticket last year, and therefore have a right to some representation. But Wheeler himself became a candidate against the State ticket and Peckham was his chief lieutenant; therefore they cannot have any standing whatever in a Convention composed of standing whatever in a Convention composed of regular Democrats.

Edward M. Shepard, the Brooklyn bosa is in the same category with Wheeler and Peckham. He is the man who nominated Mr. Wheeler for Governor; but, as he has seen the error of his way and has come seeking forgiveness, he is welcomed. His chief cronies are Judge Wetmore and Senator Coffey, and to see them lock arms is a sight to cheer the heart of the angel of peace. Possibly Mr. James D. Hell and Judge Delmar and Senator Coffey may even consent to the nomination of Mr. Shepard as Mayor of Brooklyn this fall. If there is any chance to knock the conceit out of him they undoubtedly will consent.

After the State Committee decided to recommend the adoption of a star as the party em-blem, the managers of the Alhambra Skating Rink, who have charge of the decoration of the place, put a huge red, white and blue star on the platform, directly in front of the Chair-man's table. As was said yesterday, it had at man's table. As was said yesterday, it had at first been proposed to have a stuffed tiger among the decorations in the hall, but the order for one was countermanded at the last minute. While they refused to have a tiger, the lemnorate consented to the display of the Republican emblem, a spread eagle. A huge gill ragle occupied a most conspicuous place in the hall, directly over the platform and the Democratic star. What made it look mere like the Republicans' emblem was a box underneath it of the size and almost the shape of a ballot bux. The Republican emblem is an eagle perched on a ballot bux.

The Garoos, in the persons of Mr. Herman Ridder and Charles F. MacLean, are travelling around the town with chips on their shoulders, faviting various citizens to knock the chips off. Mr. Ridder has had two personal altercations, in one of which there came very near being an exchange of blows. It occurred last evening in one of the upper corridors of the Yates. The man he tackled was John F. McIniyre, the Assistant District Attorney. The argument was, of course, a political one, and it drew a big crowd. It ended only when Mr. Mcintyre's friends polled him away. The second man Mr.

Syracuse has joined the "high ball belt." high bail" is whiskey in a long glass, a chunk of ice, and the giass filled up with any sort of mineral water. The first man who came to Syracuse this year on Convention business called for a high ball, and now every barrender in town knows what it means, and the lottle cafes and the sairons ring with loud calls of "High ball, there." The old line of the high ball belt was Buffalo previous to this year.

Congressman Franklin Bartlett occupied the seat of honor among the delegates to the Con-vention to-day. It was the first scaton the right of the main sisle and at the head of the New York delegation. Ex-Congressman Amos J. Cummings brought the important news to the Convention to-day that Civil Justice Wauhope Lynn had come to that Civil Justice Wauhope Lynn had come to Syracuse with a Free Cuba plank in his bocket, and was going to direct all his eulogies toward having it inserted in the platform. Regarding the platform, Senator Hill has made it known that all planks are welcome in the Convention. Everything offered to the Com-mittee on Resolutions, on whatever subject, will be considered and discussed, and any man with a plank will be heard.

Squire Defreest, the Secretary of the Democratic State Committee, who had charge of the distribution of tickets to the Convention, had the appearance this morning of having had his hair filed off. Congressman Henry Clay Sulzer also disguised himself with a hair-cut, the first, it is said, that he had had in eleven years and eight months. Not haif the delegates knew him.

s The Kings county Shepardites announced today that they had won a just victory before the State Committee. "We get in," they said, "and we are left to do just as we please in the matter of a local ticket." The fact is that the resolution which the State Committee passed resolution which the State Committee passed recommended to the Convention that the agreement of the Bell men and the Shepard men regarding representation in the Convention should be ratified, but that, in case any disagreement between the organizations on the question of a local ticket arcset, the State Committee recognized the organization of which James D. Bell was Chairman as the regular Democratic organization, and the only one authorized to use the Democratic emblem on its ballot. This makes the Shepardites either come in out of the wet when local nominations are made or cease posing as Democrats.

Great Scott declared to the reporters at the "The New York State Democracy will make absolutely no pledges of any sort to the State Convention regarding its attitude on the local ticket. We want to be represented in the Con-vention, but we would rather pack up our traps and go home than make any pledges."

Congressman Theodore Poole, Republican, ecupied a conspicuous seat at the Convention. The Congressman was a delegate to the Hon. Thomas C. Platt's Convention at Saratoga last week. He got an insight to-day into the workweek. He got an insight to-day into the workings of a Convention run by the people, and he went away impressed. Prof. Herrmann, the prestidigitateur, was another guest. The rumor that he had been brought here to juggle with the excise plant was denied as quickly as it was started. It is possible that he may be needed to juggle with the Hon. Patrick t-leason and some other people who think they will be permitted to sit as delegates.

A Democratic newspaper reporter took out his watch and noted the time last night in the corridor of the Yates. Five minutes later he wanted to note it again and felt for his watch. It was gone. He went to Police Headquarters and saw the Chief, who assigned Detective O'Brien to go with him to the hotel. An hour later the de-tective tapped him on the shoulder and placed the watch in his hand.

"How in the devil did you get it?" demanded the reporter. the reporter.
"Oh, never mind," said O'Brien, "You have got it back; ask no questions."

The Democratic party is poor this year, There was only one band at the Convention. That was a Syracuse aggregation. The music was good, but the musicians had to wind themselves to satisfy the growd.

When ex-Secretary Charles S. Fairchild got up in the Convention and presented the credentials of the State Democracy's contesting delegation, there was great cheering on the part of the up-country delegates. When the Hon. Perry Belmont, in the course of his speech, mentioned the name of Grover Cleveland, the New York State Democracy delegation yelled itself hoarse. When he mentioned the name of Senator Hill, the Senator's friends, led by the boss Hill shouter. Ed Kelly, who yelled himself black in the face at Chicago in 1892, outdid the State Democracy yell. Kelly stood just outside the wings, on the right of the platform, and at the first mention of Senator Hill's name he let out a whoop that stirred the waters of the canal in front of the rink. He followed it with another and another and another. The crowd took up the first yell. At the third yell a man in the New York delegation, who had a seat just behind ex-Mayor Gliroy, hopped up as if he had been stabbed from behind and began waving his arms wildly in the air and screaming at the top of his voice. It was thought that he had a fit. He said afterward that it was the first time he had cheered for a year, and he had a surplus of enthusiasm. hoarse. When he mentioned the name of Senator

"A State Convention," said the Hon, George B. McClellan, Congressman elect from the Twelfth Congress district, "is a great place for studying human nature. One thing that is particularly noticeable at a Convention, and one thing that I can't understand at all, is how these people who carry knives up their sleeves can meet the men they have the knives there for, and shake hands with them and say they are glad to see them, and all that. That's hypocrisy, and that's something that I have no use for?

"Perhaps," suggested a listener, "it isn't "Perhapa," suggested a listener, it isn't hypocrisy; perhaps they are really as glad to see their opponents as they say they are. Suppose their opponents atayed away; there wouldn't be any chance to use the knives." Yes, there may be something in that,"admitted Col. McClellan.

There is no comparison between the Conven tion hall in Saratoga and the Convention hall in Syracuse. The hall at Saratoga is a substantial building, with seats arranged in tiers, so everybody has an unobstructed view and is able o hear everything that is said. The plan of the to hear everything that is said. The plan of the hall here is on a level, and the seats are of slat wood. It isn't possible to hear anything what is said unless it is said from the platform. The hall is an ideal one for a Convention where the bosses run things, and there is no end of talk from the crowd, but it is not a good one for a people's Convention. If the Republicans had had this hall in Saratoga it is dollars to biscuits that the Hon. Warner Miller never would have got that Sunday maintenance plank in the platform.

The Rev. A. H. Fanstock opened the Conven tion to-day with prayer. This is the first Democratic Convention opened with prayer since 1884. Some of the delegates who knew this re-marked, as the length of the prayer became noticeable, "He's making up for the lost years."

The name of the Hon. William C. Whitney was not greeted with the applause that might have been expected. This had no particular significance, perhaps, because up to the point in Mr. Belmont's speech when the name was mentioned there had been little cheering. There had been a great deal of disturbance, due to delegates coming in late, and the crowd hadn't had a chance to warm up.

The Hon. Perry Belmont was congratulated warmly by the leaders after his speech. He delivered it in a masterly manner and in a much louder voice than he usually uses in making an address. The Hill men whooped it up when he said, in speaking of Senator fill: "He did not hesitate to be submerged by Issues he neither framed or promoted." The Cleveland men did not like that senlence. framed or promoted," not like that sentence.

A despatch received here to-day from Little Falls announces that that town was on a wild spree last night and on the verge of delirium tremens this morning. Tammany Hail, the despatch says, is to blame, Inquiry among the Tammany delegates who came from New York on train 1 of the specials, which was delayed at Little Falls by a hot box, develops the fact that Tammany Hall certainly is responsible. It appears that when the train stopped there and the villagers gathered around, the delegaces opened their lockers and began handing out ill-quor. The news apread and hindreds mallered. Whiskey was dealt out in goliets and even in bottles. The entire stock in Senator Plunkitt's car, the one afflicted with a hot box, was disposed of by the crowd, and more than half the stock of the other twelve cars. The amount of liquor and beer consumed, if taken in reasonable drinks, with some panses between, wouldn't have done any harm, perhaps, but there was no time to scare. The train was likely to go altead at any moment. So the fittle Falls crowd filled up quickly and got quick results. It isn't likely that the train will stop at Little Falls on the way back. on train 1 of the specials, which was delayed at

e Had Been Well-to-do, but Lost His Money on the Races and in Speculation— Was Going to Swindle a Bookmaker to Oct It Back| Held at Hendquarters. Through the intervention of Mayor Strong, one John L. Martin of Chicago, who, under the name of James B. Moore, had come on here to swindle people, was arrested yesterday and locked up at Police Headquarters. On last Saturday morning Martin, who is a very respectable looking man with his left arm missing below the elbow, introduced himself to Corlies, Macy & Co., the stationers, at 97 William street, as J. B. Moore, cashler of the Merchants and Importers' Bank of Chicago, He came East, he said, on a combination pleasure and business trip, and had opened an account with the Central National Bank at 320 Broad-

Then, after a few further preliminaries, he gave an order for 4,000 blank checks and 1,000 checks on the Central National Bank. He was told that he could have the checks on Tuesday.

When Martin had gone, the stationers, as a precautionary measure, made inquiries concern ing him at the Central National Bank and learned that he was unknown there.

Mayor Strong when he became the city's Chief Magistrate was President of that bank, but he has since resigned. He is still a director there however, and when he heard of the incident he at once communicated the facts to Police Com missioner Roosevelt. The latter turned the matter over to Chief Detective O'Brien. In answer to inquiries, the Chicago police telegraphed that there was no such bank as the Merchants and Importer such bank as the Merchants and Importers' there, so when Mr. Moore appeared for his checks at Corlies, Macy & Co.'s yesterday he was taken into custody.

In his pockets were found a $25 check on the Himois Trust Company, made out to J. B. Moore and signed Moore Brus. & Co., a number of papers addressed to John L. Martin, referring to a chaim against an accident insurance company, and a telegram which read:

"Clara improving. No hurry. If need any money make check on Trust Company.

"Clara improving. No hurry. If need any money make check on Trust Company.

"MOORE BROS. & CO."

He said he had been stopping at the Aster House and the Glen Island Hotel in Cortlandt street, and he seemed to repard his arrest in the light of an annoying error that would soon be rectified. Fending an investigation of his statement he was placed in a cell at Headquarters. Soon afterward, however, he expressed a desire for a private talk with Cant. O'Brien.

When the two were alone Moore admitted that Martin was his real name. He was an electrician, he said, 44 years old, and that he resided in South Park, a suburb of Chicago, the said that he had formerly been manager for the General Electrical Company of Chicago and had been well-to-do, but had lost his money by speculation in stocks and wheat and on the horse races. Then he lost his place, but until Aug, I was manager of the National Electrical Company. Since then he has been selling second-hand electrical apparatus.

He left Chicago, he said, after passing a number of worthless checks on various business houses. He visited Cleveland, Auburn, and Boston, and passed bogus checks on any friend he chanced to meet.

Most of the money he lost on the races, he said, went to a bookmaker named Ullman, who was now following the races in the East. He had often paid his obligations in checks, and he intended, if he had succeeded in getting the checks from Corlies, Macry & Co., to place a $2,500 bet with Ullman, and if he won he would have considered that he was only getting back some of the money he had lost.

He admitted that the telegram and $25 check found in his pockets were bogus.

Martin was taken to the Tombs Court and Havana, Sept. 24.—Reports have been received here that Col. Hernandez commanding the Government troops in the Sagua district, overtook a band of rebels on the plantation of Caridad and routed them. Pursuing them, he attacked them again at Libano, killing three, taking three orisoners, and capturing a quantity of horses, arms, ammunition, &c.

It is also reported from Sancti Spiritus officially that Lieut-Cols. Navas and Cavestany, with their combined forces, had a battle with the rebels at Claleita on Sept. 21, in which four rebels were killed.
Eudaido Tamavo, Antonio Bravo, Alfredo Betancourt, and Desiderio Fajardo have been arrested at Santiago de Cuba for connection with the rebellion. They will be deported to Spain.

Within a month nine American-built steam cutters under the Spanish flag will be on cruis ng duty on the north coast of Cuba. The late Admiral Manuel Delgado Parejo sent Lieuten ant Commander Triana to this city on special duty, and the orders for these cutters were placed very quietly. Not until they were complaced very quietly. Not until they were com-pleted did the fact of their ownership become known. The last of the nine was shipped to Cuba a few days ago. The lengths of the cutters vary from sky to seventy feet, and their speed from eleven to fourteen miles an hour. Their average draught is four feet. Their crews will number from fifteen to twenty. The posts of the new vessels will be on the north coust of Cuba, between Matanzas and Santlago de Cuba. They are built especially for rapid in-shore work.

NOTES ON JAPAN AFFAIRS. Villages in West Formons Shelled by Two

TORIO, Sept. 13, via Vancouver. B. C., Sept. 24.—The Japanese cruisers, the Yoshino and the Naniwa, noteworthy for their achievements during the war between Japan and China, have recently added to their record some valuable services in the Formosan campaign. Steaming along the west coast of the island of Formosa, they have bombarded barracks, shelled strong positions, and landed parties of marines to cap ture villages held by the insurgents, thus materially facilitating the operations of the troops. Japan's shipbuilding programme for the next five years has been definitely settled. In addition to the two large tronclads now building in England, she is to have four line-of-battle ships of the Royal Sovereign type, three cruisers of from 7,000 to 8,000 tons, four cruisers of 4,000 tons, with a speed of twenty knots, and a num-ber of smaller craft. When this programme is carried out her fleet will comprise six first-class line-of-battle ships, each more powerful than any vessel flying a foreign flag in Eastern waters, and a large squadron of magnificent fast

Much attention has been attracted in Japan by the intelligence that the King of Corea has granted exclusive mining rights in the province of Pyong-an-o for twenty-five years to an American trading company well known in the East. The only condition attached to the grant is that the company shall pay one-fourth of its profits into the royal treasury. The Japanese press condemns its countrymen for want of enterprise in allowing themselves to be thus fore stalled by Americans.

Recent storms and inundations in Japan have done serious damage to two railways, the Tsuruga and the Hokuriku. It is calculated that no less than 4,500,000 yen will be required to repair the lines.

Pending the resumption of the campaign in Formosa on a large scale, no events of special importance are occurring there. The island was visited by the usual summer storms on Sept. 4 and 5, with the result that communication by land and sea alike were interrupted.

It appears that the inhabitants in the central region and abortginal tribes are reported to have killed all the defeated insurgents who took refuge in the mountains,

One of the most notable features of Japanese commercial progress during the last five years has been an increase of banking facilities. The number of private banks has increased from 972, with an aggregate capital of 25,500,000 yen in 1800, to 761, without aggregate capital of 54,250,000 yen in 1804. In addition to these there are 133 national banks, with a capital of 49,000,000 yen, 804 companies akin to banks withis eapital of 103,000,000 yen, and 34 savings banks with a capital of 11,500,000 yen. The marked growth of America's silk turchases from Japan during the past ten years is quite a feature in the Japanese trade. These purchases increased from 15,500,000 yen in 1885 to 28,500,000 yen in 1894. It may be added that while Japan's total exports to all countries aggregated only 29,000,000 yen in 1885 the figure for 1894 was 52,000,000 yen has been an increase of banking facilities. The countries aggregated only 29,000,000 yen in 1885 the figure for 1894 was 52,000,000 year 1885 the figure for 1894 was 52,000,000 year approximately.

The expected resignation of the portfolio of Foreign Affairs by Count Mutsu is not likely to take place for the present, at all events. The Count's health is sufficiently restored to permit his continuing in the discharge of the duties of his post, and the nation cannot spare him conveniently.

Several of these extremists have been prosecuted under the provisions of the law of publication.

A remarkable literary coincidence has lately been established in Japan. Mr. Miyake Yujiro, a Japanese journalist, has shown that a celebrated Chinese poem, written several hundred years ago by Liu Ting Che, bears a really striking resemblance to "The Last Leaf" by Oliver Wendell Holmes. It is scarcely conceivable that the American author could have any idea of the Chinese morthants are gradually returning to Seoul, and resuming business there. They labor, however, under several disadvantages. Many of their principal connections have been severed owing to the Tong Hack rebellion, and they are obliged to import their goods via Nagasaki, instead of getting them direct from Chins. They are no longer enjoying the protection of the once all-powerful Chinese resident Yuan. None the less, these traders are beginning once more to make headway against their Japanese competitors.

The mail steamer Belgic ran ashore on Sept. S at the east coint of the entrance to the Bay of Tokio. There is often a heavy tide ripoff this point, but the operation of rounding it at a mile's distance has never been counted dangerous. There was a heavy sea at the time, and a strong current was running as the vessel struck. She went upon sand. So slight was the shock of the first contact that some of the passengers did not perceive it, and only when her engines were stopped and she began to bump through the heavy rollers striking her were they aware of what had happened.

The lifeboats were got ready, and in doing this the second officer, Mr. Bickman, was lost.

heavy rollers striking her were they aware of what had happened.

The lifeboats were got ready, and in doing this the second officer, Mr. Bickman, was lost. The vessel had a considerable list, and, while the second officer was getting out a lifeboat on the weather side, a big sea swept over the vessel and carried him off his feet, dashing him against the ship's side. Apparently he was rendered helpless by the blow, for when life buoys were thrown to him he failed to hold fast to one he had caught, and, sinking, was swept away. The purser, accompanied by two foreign passengers and one Japanese passenger, shortly after got sshore in one of the boats, and, going to Tateyama, telegraphed to Yokohama, whence assistance was sent as soon as possible.

graphed to Yokohama, whence assistance was sent as som as possible.

A steamer was despatched with anchors, hawsers, and other necessary appliances, taking in tow a lot of lighters and a large number of coolies to lighten the vessel. A fine-looking and somewhat notorious wo man, who keeps a saloon in an adjoining village, called at his office and demanded $500. He promptly refused to give her a cent, and she threatened to go and call upon his wife.

"Go along at once." he said, not believing that she would carry out her threat. But, thinking after she had gone that she might do so, he called up his home on the office telephone He has two big, stout, and faithful Germa girls employed as servants, and when one of them responded to the call he gave her a description of the adventuress and told her to be on the lookout for her.

"When she comes," he said "you let her in and take her to the reception room. Don't call my wife, but get Lena, and then both of you my wife, but get Lena, and then both of you pitch in and givs her a licking. Take broomsticks, or anything else to her, and after you have pounded her throw her out. If my wife saks anything about it tell her that it is by my orders. Give it to her good."

The two girls were eager for the fray when the visitor arrived half an hour later. They conducted her to the reception room, made sure that the description tailed, and then waded into the woman. She is the herome of many fights, with her husband and with other men, but the two German girls were too heavy for her. She made a stiff fight in the little room, but emerged in five minutes with both eyes nearly closed and with innumerable bruises on her arms and body. How the lawyer explained the matter to his wife is entirely a private matter. The girls could tell her nothing when she came down stairs and saw them throwing the visitor out, except that it was done "by order of the boss."

Prince Labonow of the Russian Foreign Office, Prince Labanow of the Russian Foreign Office, in a note transmitting the regulations, says that the Russian law places certain restrictions on the entrance of Israelites to Russian territory, but that these restrictions are far from implying an absolute interdiction, and they have their source in considerations of a kind essentially administrative and economic.

The imperial Government, the Prince says, had already many millions of Jewish subjects, and only admits Jews of foreign allegiance when they seem to present a guarantee that they will not be a charge on the State, but will be able to be useful to the internal development of the country. It is because he had it in view to protect Russia from an indux of a protearist of this nature that the Russian authorities have established certain regulations.
